Sunday evening in compilment to Miss Margaret Preston Draper and her flance. Prince Andrea Boncompagni. Mrs. Cochran, who was formerly Miss Alice Whiting, and Miss Draper have been friends for years, and made their debut the same season.

Last evening Miss Draper and Prince Boncompagni dined with the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, with twenty-six additional guests. The embassy was abloom with flowers from the front door to the great drawing-room, where the two guests of honor stood with their host and hostess to receive the good wishes of every one present. The distinguished company included Miss Draper's mother, Mrs. William F. Draper; the Italian Ambassador and Countess Macchi di Cellere, with members of the staff of the Italian and Russian embassies and a few close friends of the bride.

Miss Draper's trustee, William King Richardson, of Boston, who will give her in marriage, will be the only guest stopping at the Draper home at the time of the ceremony, but afterward Mrs. Draper will entertain a number of guests from out of town who will be with her for several days.

Catholic Marriage.

Catholic Marriage. The marriage of Miss Draper and Prince Andrea Boncompagni, although taking place in the drawing room of taking place in the drawing room of the bride's home, will be celebrated according to the full ritual of the Roman Catholic Church, to which the bridegroom's family has given two Popes and a score of great ecclesiastics.

His eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, will conduct the marriage service, which will be followed by a nuptial mass, with Mgr. William Russell as celebrant. The unusual privilege of having mass said in a private house, which for the occasion becomes a private chapel, is one of the favors bestowed by the Church of Rome on the Boncompagnitudovici family and applies to any part of the world in which a member of this illustrious house may be.

Has Been Under Instruction. Miss Draper has been under instruction with Monsignor Russell for several months and will be received into the Catholic Church between now and Oc-tober 25, the date of the wedding, so that none of the restrictions applied to a marriage between a Catholic and a Protestant will be enforced. The mem-bers of Miss Draper's family are Protes-tants.

Seheral in Chicago since early spring, has been relieved. He has gone to New York, and will sail today for Europe for a vacation of three months. He resided at the Onwentsia Club while in Chicago.

Count Bonde will sail aboard the Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII for Copenhagen via Kirkwall. He will pass the greater part of the time in Sweden, but plans to visit several. European countries before returning to America. Upon his return, he will come to Washington and resume his duties as Secretary of the Swedish legation.

Mrs. Dion Williams, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Williams, U. S. A., entertained informally at luncheon today in compliment to her house guest, Mrs. George Brown, of New London, Conn.

Dr. and Mrs. Guy Fairfax Whiting

Dr. and Mrs. Guy Fairfax Whiting and Miss Julia Whiting returned to Washington Sunday from their summer home in Bar Harbor.

Mrs. John Baldwin Cochran, formerly Miss Alice Whiting, who passed the summer with her parents in Bar Harbor, joined Mr. Cochran in Washington on October 8. Mr. and Mrs. Cochran have leased a house at 1811 R street for the winter.

Jones-Lacy Wedding. An interesting wedding of this even-ing will be that of Miss Elizabeth Lacy, laughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander Lacy, and Dr. Alfred Power Jones of Roanoke, Va., at the West Street Presbyterian Church at 8 o'clock. Palms and autumn leaves in great profusion will adorn the chancel, while baskets will adorn the chancel, while baskets of yellow chrysanthemums will mark some of the pews. The back of the church will be banked with paims. The bridegroom's father, the Rev. Dr. Alfred Jones, of Winchester, Va., will officiate, assisted by the bride's brother, the Rev. J. A. Lacy, of Hinton, W. Va. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, and will wear a gown of ivory duchess satin heavily embroidered with pearls and with trimmings of lace. She will wear a tulle veil arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms on the hair. She will carry a shower bouquet of Bride roses and illies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Sallie Vest Lacy, will be the only attendant for her sister. Her gown will be of pink taffets, veiled with princess lace made with a bodice and drapery of pink, tulle. Her bouquet will be of pink chrysanthemums.

Drury Jones Best Man.

The Rev. Drury Jones, of North Carolina, will be his brother's best man, while Lyle Jones, of Roanoke; Henry Lacy, of Pittsburgh, a brother of the bride; Harris Lacy, of Winchester, the bride's cousin; Dr. Richard Silvester, of Ealtimore; Dr. Charles Crawford, and Dr. Harvey Stone will act as ushers.

med Dr. Harvey Stone will act as ushers.

Yellow chrysanthemums, autumn leaves, and palms will decorate the drawing room and hall at the home of the bride, where her parents will entertain at a reception after the ceremony. Mrs. Lacy will receive in a gown of lavender brocaded satin and old black lace, and a corsage bouquet of violets and lilles of the valley.

When Dr. Jones and his bride leave for an extended wedding trip later in the evening, the latter will wear a smart tailored suit of cadet blue broadcloth trimmed with seal, and a large black velvet hat. They will reside in Roanoke, Va. Some of the guests who have come to Washington for the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Lacy, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Ethel Jones, of Baltimore.

presented one of the most unusual figures the old criminal courts building has ever seen.

Through it all he was impassive; occasionally his eyes flashed from the jurors to Assistant District Attorney Brothers and then to Rofrano. His answers came without pause, and only when he told how he shot Gaimari did he seem, at all moved. Then his eyes flashed and his hand shot out, the trigger finger working.

Montimagno picked up the thread of his story at the point where he came back from Schenectady in 1913 and Cornell and Fennimore began to urge him to keep his promise to "the boss" and kill "that person."

"The boss is like the king," they told him, and said he must not be afraid.

"You know if you are arrested the boss will do everything for you. He has said so, Fennimore said. 'He is a friend of the mayor, the governor, the district attorney, the police commissioner, and the judges. nearly a month ago arose an interesting correspondence which sheds light on military training of youth in European nations.

Mrs. Post, wife of the assistant secretary of labor, and a director of the Woman's Peace Party, gave a statement to The Times saying she does not favor conscription, an issue upon which the women of Australia will be called upon to vote.

Following this statement H. H. Sheets, secretary of the Association for National Service, wrote Mrs. Post asking her to join the association.

Mrs. Post replied, in part: "I object to military training even more than I object to conscription. " I notice that in your folder you allude to 'military training before reaching the age of twenty-one." I presume that you are aware that even Germany and France—the most militaristic nations of our time—do not fayor military training of the youth."

Mr. Sheets thereupon wrote to the Secretary of War for information on the military training in Germany and France. After communicating with several other officials to whom he was referred he received a letter from Mai. Gen. Theodore Schwan, U. S. A., retired, which stated:

"In your letter of yesterday's date you direct my attention to a statement should be permitted to go forth from what might well be regarded as a responsible source is amazing. Universal military training for a term of years in time of peace in the ranks of the regular army at the age of twenty has been compulsory in Germany for considerably more than a century.

"France and the other great states of Continental Europe long since followed suit. The war of 1856, between Austria and Prussia, the war of 1870-71, and the present war, between France and Germany have all been fought out by conscripts so trained. These facts sufficiently demonstrate the absurdity of the above cited statement. But it may be sided that long before the conscript enters the ranks of the army a foundarion has, as a rule, been laid for his training in the form of athletic exercises of one kind or another in the public schools. Par frano. The latter took him into a room and sat down.

"He said. Tommy, Rocks, Fennimore and Brondini—have they said anything to you?' I said. 'Yes, they told me you want me to kill "the Horse".

"He said. "Yes 'It's more than a month you said tomorrow, and you have not done anything yet."

"Chock came in and said, 'Shut up, shut up, some persons are coming in, we do not want our business to be known."

"They went into another room. Mon-

shut up, some persons are coming in, we do not want our business to be known." "They went into another room, Montimagno continued, and Rofrano said: "Tomizy, do this homicide that all may go well. You know who I am in New York and outside of New York, that many persons of the law do what I tell them to do, and you know that by taking away "The Horse" all the other American citisens will come to me and then Foley has got to be my slave. Take the man out of the way and then you will fare better than I do. You get a position and you don't have to work and won't have to be a boy of the underworld. "I have fixed everything in New York and you can go either today or tomorrow and do this job. When you shoot, if you should be caught I will free you right away; my pocketbook and my friendship will fix everything. The only thing you are to do, when they point out the person you go by the back of the man, shoot him, and fear not. So I said 'all right,' to get rid of him." Then came the days of Montimagno's instruction in the best way to get his man without being caught. They took him to where "The Horse" lived, and pointed out the cafe across the street where he went to get his coffee. They showed him saloons where he frequently spent some time talking with the men of his gang. And at each place they told him where to stand, how to shoot and where to run away. Y. W. H. A. Dance Is
